Inaugural Conference

'Best Practice in Restorative Justice - Transformational Change'

Twin Waters Resort, Sunshine Coast, Queensland, Australia

16 - 19 October 2007

Lead the community and make a difference

An invitation to sponsor

Here is an opportunity for your organisation to promote good corporate citizenship by contributing to the development of a safer more functional community. A sponsorship package will raise your profile by being associated with this organisation and a conference of over 300 national and international delegates, including reaching many hundreds of others who are unable to attend this event.

About us - Restorative Practices International (RPI)

Restorative Practices International was formally established in 2007 as an association for world-wide practitioners working in the developing field of restorative justice. Restorative Justice is an emerging social science enabling individuals, families, organisations and communities to restore and strengthen relationships in an increasingly disconnected world.

The organisation is a not for profit professional member association.

About our conference

The theme of the Association's inaugural conference is 'Best Practice in Restorative Justice - Transformational Change'. The conference is organised into three main streams:

1. Justice
2. Education
3. Families, Systems and Community.

Who will attend?

Over 300 delegates will include a range of national and international practitioners and experts working across and within education, justice, family, systems, and community. The conference details and outcomes will also reach many hundreds of others who are unable to attend.

Why sponsor the conference?

This is an opportunity for your organisation to make a difference. By supporting this conference and organisation you are making a statement to your clients and staff that you are committed to making a difference to your local and wider push to develop peaceful and accountable communities.
